

Century College offers an exceptional training program for medical assistants.

As a manager in a family medicine clinic, I have accepted many students from the program for their clinical externship and they are always well prepared to work in a professional setting. They come to our clinic with a strong foundation and knowledge of the basic skills required for medical assisting.

The program sets high standards in performing both clinical and administrative protocols. During their externship, students learn to apply these skills in the clinic mentored by staff and working directly with our patients. Students rotate through all areas of the clinic from making appointments and answering phone calls to rooming the patients, assisting physicians and performing laboratory and diagnostic tests.

Century College students have consistently demonstrated high performance work in our clinic and I have hired several students for positions within our facility. And I feel confident about giving recommendations for employment to other healthcare organizations.

As a member of the Medical Assisting Advisory Committee I have had the opportunity to work with the faculty on defining competencies and guidelines for the program. The faculty is well organized and focused on providing a thorough curriculum for their students.

Century College Medical Assisting Program offers students a positive learning experience which contributes to success for the students and a fulfilling career for the graduates.
