Impact of Bias and Stereotypes in the Workplace

What are implicit and explicit biases, and why is it important to understand where they originate? We’ve all heard stories of workplace bias and stereotypes in the news and in our personal and professional lives. Explicit biases and stereotypes are those that we are conscious of and implicit biases and stereotypes are those that live deep in our unconsciousness. Both types of biases and stereotypes can have a dramatic effect on workplace effectiveness, engagement, and productivity. This training is intended to help you understand and minimize the role of bias within your experiences and communications. Through education and discussion, this training strategy will help you understand how to effectively recognize and manage your own and others’ biases and stereotypes at work.

Train the Trainer: How to Design, Build and Deliver Training Using a Modular Format

Are your trainers just reading power point slides to people and putting them to sleep? In our society today, fast transfer of knowledge is essential. Being able to organize information in a logical, teachable fashion is critical. People learn in different ways. A trainer must be receptive to this and make the training active, fun, and engaging in order for it to stick and be remembered. If methods are taught, they need to be demonstrated or illustrated. The trainer needs to share their personal experiences to make an emotional connection with their audience. Participants of this session will get ideas on the use of: physical models, storytelling, engagement methods, YouTube videos, pictures, graphs, charts, etc. They will learn how to organize and enhance existing training materials with their personality and experiences.

Fostering an Inclusive Climate

Inclusion is ultimately about how your team functions and performs based on the quality of social connections, openness to learning, agility, and depth of decision making. How can you foster greater inclusion within your workgroup? Throughout this course you will be asked to reflect upon your own experiences and apply the lessons in your own role. You will examine the concept of climate, specifically inclusive climates, as well as learn about the specific behaviors and skills you need to demonstrate in order to be successful in shaping an inclusive climate. Analyze strategies for enforcing ethical standards, assess the inclusiveness of your unit’s climate, and examine the critical role of leadership in setting an inclusive climate.

Leading and Working in a New Normal

Leaders will need to make bold choices for their organizations to respond to the substantial changes we are currently experiencing. We’re not going back to where we were. The new normal is still unknown. Leaders and employees find themselves in uncharted territory. The difficulty of leading in times of turmoil comes not just from the nature of the crisis at hand, but also from the challenges of working with organizational models that were built for scale, efficiency and stability. Worse, our brain wiring constrains us from the creativity we need to improvise in a totally new set of circumstances. This session will review tools and techniques that have proven successful when developing for the new normal. It will examine what is changing, and provide tools for leading in regards to working from a distance and during times of change.

Resilience: Do You Bend or Break During Change?

Life is full changes, good and bad. These changes take their toll on our ability to accomplish personal and organizational goals unless we know how to bounce back when things don’t go as planned. We can’t stop change from happening but we can change our response. Resilient people don’t dwell on the things that didn’t work. They accept the situation for what it is and learn from the experience to help them move forward. As a result, resilient people tend to be happier, more productive, and more innovative. Doesn’t that sound like a better way to deal with change?

Professional Ethics
This seminar focuses on ethics in today’s changing and challenging world; addressing ethical conflicts that are faced daily throughout the public, private, and nonprofit professions. This seminar focuses on real-life situations many have faced. These dilemmas can help us learn together from our successes and failures. The overall goal is to provide tools to assist in confronting an ethical conflict or dilemma, rather than just acting instinctively and facing the consequences. Doing the right thing and being a person of integrity and of high moral character is not easy, but will greatly benefit you and your organization over the long-term.

Body Cameras
This four hour class is intended both for agencies that are considering body worn cameras (BWC) and those that already have them. In an era where the public watchwords seem to be accountability and transparency many civilian official, members of the public and peace officer agencies are turning to BWC as one tool. This class will drill down into detail the elements of Minn. Stat. 13.825, its definitions, data practices implications and several other aspects of managing body cameras. You will not walk away with all the definitive answers because due to the way the statutes are written for some of the issues we discuss there are not yet an definitive answers but at the end of the day you will know the business and policy questions your agency and your attorneys need to address.

Civil Rights Liability and Defenses for Criminal Justice Professionals
The tide of civil lawsuits brought against law enforcement and other criminal justice professionals is not likely to abate any time soon and in fact many public officials are looking at changes that increase your and your agency liability exposure. In this class an experienced defense civil rights litigation attorney will take the mystery out of this Civil War era federal law that is used tens of thousands of times each year in the modern era to sue criminal justice professionals and other public officials for alleged violations of plaintiff’s constitutional rights. While our focus is on criminal justice professionals, if you work for a government agency you are a potential defendant. Rick will explain the history of the Act, what a plaintiff must prove as well as defenses and ways to reduce the potential liability to you and your agency for damages, injunctions and attorney fees.
